PARDON.

There Was None SPORTS.

Even Judge Kohler's Wish Wasn't Granted,

"It is an arbitrary rule that ought to be abolished," said Judge J. A. Kohler Tuesday, while talking about the conditions at the Lancaster Reform School under which it has been difficult to secure the release of Frank Bisson. A writ of habeas corpus has been issued against the superintendent of the school to cause Bisson's release Wednesday. Sheriff Kelly will serve the writ this evening.

The rule about which Judge Kohler spoke is a system of demerits, which seems to be beyond the reach of Pardon boards. When a boy is placed in was rated at 6,000 demerit marks. ing against any of them, Reducing this number at the rate of 10 a day would require 600 days. Say able record this season. To such an extent has this condition grown, that Akron brickmakers are even glad to see the shipments of Canton brick, that arrive here daily to be used on the new shop. Many car loads are taken to that place each day over the Erie, and are used to supplement the supply furnished by the Akron brick yards.

The inability of the Webster com pany to secure structural iron, with which to begin the frame of the new factory, is not important at the pres ent time, for the walls may be finished before the structural iron is necessary. Notches and places are left for the iron work, as the brick work progresses. The plans are perfect and there will be a place for every piece that has been ordered.

The work is giving employment to an enormous force of men, local bricklayers working side by side with those from Baltimore and many other outside places.
